Manager CommentaryFund commentary

The nReach Capital IP Worldwide Flexible Fund delivered a return of +1.30% for the month of July 2025, achieving a positive result in a challenging and rapidly shifting market environment. Although the performance lagged the ASISA Multi-Asset Flexible sector average of +2.28%, the fund remained aligned with its central objective of delivering steady, risk-adjusted returns with an emphasis on "High predictability, Low volatility".

Local equity holdings were a notable driver of returns, supported by the JSE Top 40's +2.28% gain, as both domestic and global sentiment improved. Tactical positioning helped the fund capture a portion of this upside while maintaining a measured risk stance.

Fixed income exposure also contributed favourably, with the S&P South Africa Sovereign Bond 1+ Year Index advancing +2.14%. This allocation continues to play an important role in anchoring the portfolio, dampening volatility, and providing consistent income.

Looking ahead, the fund remains cautiously positioned yet agile, actively identifying selective opportunities while applying disciplined risk management to navigate uncertainty and create long-term value.

Market Commentary

Global equity markets advanced in July, supported by solid economic data and improving investor confidence. The S&P 500 gained +2.17%, while the MSCI World ETF rose +1.02%, reflecting broad-based but uneven strength across regions. U.S. markets outperformed as earnings expectations remained firm and inflation trends continued to moderate.

In South Africa, government bonds delivered robust returns, with the Satrix Government Bond ETF (STXGOV) climbing +3.47%. The rally was fuelled by the South African Reserve Bank's 25 bps interest rate cut, signalling a pivot toward monetary easing as inflation showed signs of cooling.

The rand weakened against the U.S. dollar during the month, weighed down by persistent dollar strength and foreign capital outflows.

Overall, July was marked by positive momentum in global equities, a strong rebound in local bonds, and rand depreciation — reinforcing the value of maintaining a balanced, diversified investment approach.
